Extended Engagement Reported.

Shanghai, Tuesday, Aug. 20 (Delayed). (A.P.)—The Shanghai office of the official Nationalist News Agency, today gave out a dispatch from its Mukden correspondent, saying that an official report had been received there of an extended engagement between Russians and Chinese at Tungninghuan, northeast of Kirin. The dispatch said the town changed hands four times, the Chinese finally retreating.

According to the Kuomintang announcement, 160 Soviet cavalry, equipped with machine guns, crossed the border under cover of a machine gun barrage. The Chinese units, according to Kuomintang, returned the fire, the engagement continuing until daylight, when the Chinese withdrew to their defensive position. The next day Chinese reinforcements arrived and another fight developed before the Russians were finally driven back across the border.

Another Kuomintang dispatch related that Gen. Ho Chun-Chun, personal representative of President Chiang Kai-shek, had arrived at Mukden, eight Peiping and had assured Chinese troops that the Nationalist government was available in the Yangtze Valley to support military force which is under orders to concentrate along the Peking-Tientsin Railway in preparation for an advance into Manchuria to serve as reserve units against the expected Soviet invasion.

Officer Injured In Fall Off Horse

Animal Fails to Take Ditch, Hurling Maryland Patrolman.

Mounted Patrolman F. M. Buchanan of the Laurel subdivision, Maryland State Police, was seriously injured yesterday when his horse failed to jump a ditch and threw him near the Maryland House of Correction, at Jessup, Md.

Buchanan walked to the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, nearby, and was taken to the substation in a passing automobile.

His shoulder blade was broken in the fall. The policeman is at his home in East Riverdale. He was returning from the fair at Glenburnie and had taken a short cut across a field. When he was attempting to jump a ditch and Buchanan was thrown.

The irony of the affair is that Buchanan served with the United States Marines and served in most of the major engagements of the World War without a scratch. He has been awarded the Croix de Guerre and a citation for gallantry.

He participated in the battles of Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry.

WORLD WAR PLOT LAYED TO SOVIETS

Chinese Note Sent to All Peace Pact Signatories Bared by U. S.

LETTER IS HOSTILE

Secretary of State Stimson made public yesterday a communication which the Chinese Nationalist government has sent to the Kellogg peace pact signatories, accusing Russia of promoting "secret plans to nullify the Chinese government, to organize secret forces for destroying the Chinese Eastern Railway and to carry out a policy of wholesale assassination and thereby bring about a world wide revolution."

The Chinese note asserts that Russia is now committing "acts of provocation" against the Manchurian frontier which they result in "unavoidable clashes arising out of China's determination to defend her own rights will place the responsibility for disturbing the peace of the world" upon Russia.

The note adds that China wishes to observe the Kellogg antiwar treaty, but is compelled to prepare to defend herself.

The fact that the State Department made the note public without comment, and indicated no further purpose to seek peaceful settlement in the crisis, caused considerable speculation here.

After consulting with the British, French, Japanese, German and Italian envoys a month ago, and formally calling upon China and Russia to observe their obligations under the Kellogg pact, the State Department united with the other foreign powers in urging China to restore joint control of the railroad, diplomatically referred to as the status quo ante, preliminary to peace negotiations.

War Menace Grows.

Since then, so far as can be discovered, the State Department has done nothing further. Meanwhile, the hoped-for adjustment has failed to materialize. Both sides have made increasingly militant gestures, and several open clashes have been reported.

In the face of the renewed moves to peace, expectations here had been that the United States would again seek to press for peaceful measures. Instead, the issuance of the note, which was accompanied by the most sweeping accusations, gave rise to the impression that the State Department had taken a decided turn and is no longer exerting its influence upon China but has adopted a hands-off policy.

The tenor of the Chinese note is so hostile that in unofficial quarters here it was taken to mean that direct negotiations between Russia and China are hopeless, and that outside mediation, or at least pressure, will be necessary to avert war.

GERMAN PAYMENTS BY YOUNG PLAN HIT

already been accepted. He went on, however, to assert that the Young plan is not adopted at The Hague, he could not admit Stresemann's position that Germany make payments under the plan.

The whole discussion at The Hague, he pointed out, has been whether the Young plan is to be accepted or not. He said that he is agreed in principle on evacuation of the Rhineland, but added that it would take time.

Snowden followed the French premier in declaring that the Young plan is the basis for German reparations payments in the immediate future. He asserted, however, that he is utterly opposed to the Young plan partition of annuities among the creditor nations.

What is new in the situation tonight is the fact that both Snowden and Briand stand in opposition to Germany taking the Young plan as the basis of her payments, although their objections to the Reich plan are in opposite directions.

This has left the problem exactly where it has been ever since the inception of the Young plan. Snowden and Briand have both been unwilling to prejudice the British position by temporarily taking the Young plan as the basis of German payments.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Storms today interrupted the race of seventeen women fliers from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland, Ohio, in the second air race across the continent. The contestants approved the decision of Maj. A. D. Surles, of El Paso, referee, to postpone the race.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—The race, to delay the hop-off for Pecos and Midland, Tex., because of unfavorable weather east of here. Mrs. Lottie McPhetridge, Thaden, of Pittsburgh, now holds the lead in elapsed time. In her heavy plane, she has flown to El Paso with an elapsed time of 6 hours 48 minutes and 31 seconds.

In the light plane division, Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, of Memphis, Tenn., held first place with an elapsed time of 8 hours, 35 minutes and 34 seconds out of Santa Monica.

Miss Earhart Lands First.

Miss Amelia Earhart, the first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean, was the first of the entrants to land here this morning. Her plane crossed the line at 10:14.

Sixteen of the women pilots, adorned by the death of one of the race starters in a crash in Arizona, were scheduled to start the race from Douglas, Ariz., this morning on the fourth lap of the race. The seventeenth, Miss Thae Rasche, German aviator, spent the night at Pecos, Ariz., after "foreign matter in her gasoline tank" had forced her to land.

She checked in at the airport here at 10:09 p. m. today and her elapsed time was unofficially announced as 9 hours 55 minutes 15 seconds.

After a good rest the fliers at 6 a. m. tomorrow are scheduled to start their long dash across Texas. Control points in the State are Pecos, Midland, Abilene and Fort Worth.

Sabotage Claim Scouted.

Rumors of sabotage in connection with the race were scouted today by officials to control points to protect the planes.

Twenty fliers started on the long race last Sunday at Santa Monica. The plane of Claire Fahy, Los Angeles, was forced out at Calexico, Calif., with a broken axle and a leaky gasoline tank, and Bobbie Trout, of Los Angeles, who smashed a landing gear at Mexicali, also with a broken axle.

Comparatively minor mishaps have overtaken various fliers in the race.

Thunderstorms on Route.

Shortly after the fliers' arrival here reports of severe and dangerous thunderstorms in the vicinity of Pecos, a refueling point, and they were ordered to stand by until an observation plane had flown over the area.

Later the disturbance moved on El Paso, and race officials decided to postpone the start.

Fahy and Wife Summoned.

San Bernardino, Calif., Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Declaring that investigation failed to disclose any foundation for charges of sabotage against Claire Fahy, Santa Monica-Cleveland Air Derby, Deputy District Attorney C. O. Thompson announced today that he had subpoenaed for trial Mrs. Fahy, requiring them to appear tomorrow to explain their assertion to this effect.

Mrs. Fahy, one of the contestants in the race, was arrested at Calexico, Calif., with broken wing struts. She said some one had meddled with her ship. This allegation and the death of Miss Maxine Croston, another contestant, who crashed in her plane near Welliton, Ariz., Monday, caused the investigation of the sabotage charges.

Eleven witnesses have been questioned by deputy district attorneys regarding the inspection and guarding of planes during the Sunday night stopover here. Those interviewed were: Charles E. Jones, of the Federal airport, race officials and members of the San Bernardino Exchange Club, which entertained the fliers.

"While our investigation is not completed," said a statement from the district attorney's office, "we have not been able to find any evidence of sabotage. We are of the opinion that the various oil companies interested in the race were with the planes all night. No suspicious characters were seen on the field nor was any seen tampering with the planes."

Committee Head Denies Claim.

Dr. L. W. Ayres, chairman of the San Bernardino race committee, issued a statement today to officials at the air derby stops to exercise every precaution in the guarding and inspecting of the planes. He said he had been charged with a personal investigation by him of sabotage charges found the accusations of Mrs. Fahy.

Miss Croston's body was sent to her home today for burial. Mrs. Fahy withdrew from the race together with Bobbie Trout, of Los Angeles, who was forced down at Algodones, Mex., with engine trouble, while the remaining fliers, Miss Thae Rasche, of Germany, left Douglas, Ariz., in an effort to catch the main flight en route to Midland, Tex.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED AND NINE H STREET

MAN, OF LYNCHBURG, EXTENSION IS SOUGHT

IS WOUNDED BY LION FOR RETIREMENT AGE

Immediately after the encounter with the lion and drove away, declining advice of Zoo officials that he go to a hospital for treatment.

Since none of the Zoo keepers were present at the time of the incident, the account is rather vague. All information of the lion's attack on the man was obtained from the Zoo police by visitors at the park who witnessed the attack.

They told Sgt. A. J. Kramer, of the Zoo police, that the man climbed over his guard rail, which is 6 feet in front of the bars of the lion cage. When he reached the bars it is said he thrust his arm through an opening in an effort to pet the lion.

The lion of the incident pointed out the man and struck with its paw.

The huge claws of one paw sank into the man's right arm and the lion's mouth was on his arm.

Before the startled victim could pull away, the lion reached out with its other paw and tore away a good portion of the man's trousers. It was then that the victim beat a hasty retreat.

The lion which was notified that a man had been struck by the lion rushed to the scene. Spectators of the incident pointed out the man, who was lying on the ground, and a Virginia license, which they said the man had entered.

other services but the development of the air force can not be carried out without increasing expense. No suggestions have supported the idea of crippling America's air defense by shifting the expenditure of necessary funds. The air service appropriations alone account for a difference of nearly $34,000,000 in comparing the 1916 and 1929 figures.

Another important item, which is being overlooked, according to staff doctors, is the difference in the purchasing power of the dollar. The dollar adds to the cost of the present military establishment in countless instances and must be taken into account in comparing figures for 1916 and 1929. In 1916, for example, it required almost twice as much money now to buy a machine gun for the military establishment as was required to obtain the same needs before the World War.

The war has necessitated expenditures for the development of tanks, anti-aircraft artillery and other modern military machinery which is an outgrowth of the world conflict, it is pointed out. No suggestions have reached staff officers that the American military establishment should be reduced to the level of the war of 1916.

Another item of present-day expense which no one desires to do away with, however, is the military training camps, the organized reserves, the Reserve Officers Training Corps, bought into existence by the national defense act.

Army Not Top-Heavy

Mr. Wood, it is noted, stated that the Army comprised 110,000 officers and 1,100,000 men, was therefore, top-heavy with officers, whose services presumably would be directed with in order to reduce costs. The correct figures available to the general staff give the number of officers as 12,000 and 124,187 as the number of men.

But the officers' list includes 4,147 who are on detached service, that is away from troops. As instructors of the National Guard there are 473, while 489 are instructors for the National Guard. The National Guard is a reserve force and its members are not trained overnight and must be available even though there is a reduction in the personnel. There has been no thought so far in general staff circles of doing away with the skeleton force, the theory that this would promote economy and not jeopardize adequate preparedness.

The possibility of depleting American overseas garrisons to save expense is not given serious thought. These overseas forces must be maintained at a strength approximately to that under war conditions because in the event of war they might be cut off from all home supplies. It is believed that Congress would countenance leaving American overseas forces in the Philippines or in the Panama Canal Zone devoid of necessary supplies in order to stint on expenditures.

Pay Figures Given

The question of pay under the American standard is bound to figure in any comparison of American Army costs with that of other countries. The lowest rate of pay in the American Army is $21 a month with food and quarters. The American soldier is by far the highest paid soldier in the world but it is not believed that there is any movement to curtail his pay or lower his standard of living.

"Moreover, our real wages and our standards of living are the highest in the world," President Hoover said in an address at Newark, N. J., on September 17 last, and his application to the Army as well as to other phases of American life.

All along the line the possibilities of cutting down expenses without jeopardizing necessary work are apparently disappearing under the test of investigation. Suggestions that there might be a curtailment of Coast Artillery activities overlook the fact that this branch of the service

Will Attend.

Special to The Washington Post

Winchester, Va., Aug. 21.—Gov. Harry P. Byrd has extended a general invitation to fruit growers of Virginia and nearby States to be his guests at his annual apple orchard picnic August 24 at the Green Orchard on several hills owned by the famous Apple Pie Ridge fruit belt of Frederick County.

The orchard picnic was begun in an informal way in this city, would have me believe that Al Evans, the new master of ceremonies who takes up his duties at the Palace on Saturday, has been confidentially ticketed by the press to attend the Richmond Theater in Detroit as "The Prince of Good Fellows." Personally, I suspect that Sam made up the billing on his own, but it may not be bad, as that, if all they say about the new incumbent of the post just vacated by Herbert Hoover, is true.

Mr. Evans, by implication, is an Ohioan, hailing from some place in unimpaired in Jackson County. Having early in life manifested the possession of a voice and a natural bent for the piano, he was coached by the best instructors in the county, and, after completing his musical and other education at Denison University and Ohio State, he is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity and a symphonist. This latter an honorary musical and literary fraternity at Denison.

Of course he led the college orchestra, was prominent in the Glee Club and in the dramatic societies, and was the originator of "around the campus." His first professional venture produced one of the greatest dance orchestras in the country, the California Ramblers. This band played all over the country and was considered "hot." Al then joined the Victor Orchestra and a little later Waring's Pennsylvanians, although I am under the impression that he never appeared with them during the twenty-odd weeks they have played in Washington theaters. Tom Waring having been pianist-vocalist during the local engagements.

It impresses me as an unfortunate bit of oversight, however, that Al Evans should be proclaimed on the Palace stage, in a trailer for the local management, in no way connected with the orchestra, and that he should be the founder of Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Fred Waring and his boys have been here too often to need to be introduced to the theatergoers not to be aware that they founded the organization bearing his name, and that he is the pianist originally consisting of himself, Tom, Fred Buck, banjoist, and Pol McClinton, trap drummer.

Mr. Evans, who graduated from the University of Maryland last June, has been appointed to the faculty of Bruce High School to succeed Mrs. Elizabeth Somerville, recently married to Helen Smith, Longacres, graduate of Western Maryland College, succeeds Mrs. Agnes Harris on the faculty of Westernport, who graduated at the University of Maryland last June, has been appointed to the faculty of Bruce Junior High School, Miss Annette Yates, of Cumberland, graduate of Western Maryland College will succeed Miss Ruth Apple as music supervisor at Bruce High.

Only one change was made in the Hammond Street School faculty, following the resignation of Miss Campbell, who is succeeded by Miss Virginia Barnard, daughter of former Mayor John Barnard, of Westernport. Miss Barnard has taught at McCoolle and Kitzmiller.

Special to The Washington Post

Danville, Va., Aug. 21.—Danville's three chiropractors, D. L. Ragland, E. F. Graham and T. J. Oakes, were today fined $25 each in police court for practicing without a city license. Appeals were noted and a test of the constitutionality of the amended State medical practice act was headed for the Supreme Court of Virginia in the event the conviction is sustained in the local corporation court.

A deputy commissioner of the revenue was the only witness testifying that none had paid the license fee. Defense counsel brought out that all had offered to pay the license but had been refused because they could not produce written evidence of having passed the examination of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Frank Talbot and Harry Wood, Jr., defense counsel, entered into a warm exchange when the latter in his final plea charged that the State law had been amended "for no other purpose than that of running the chiropractor out of business in this State."

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

Mr. Rubin, the cherubic publicist of the Loew houses in this city, would have me believe that Al Evans, the new master of ceremonies who takes up his duties at the Palace on Saturday, has been confidentially ticketed by the press to attend the Richmond Theater in Detroit as "The Prince of Good Fellows." Personally, I suspect that Sam made up the billing on his own, but it may not be bad, as that, if all they say about the new incumbent of the post just vacated by Herbert Hoover, is true.

Mr. Evans, by implication, is an Ohioan, hailing from some place in unimpaired in Jackson County. Having early in life manifested the possession of a voice and a natural bent for the piano, he was coached by the best instructors in the county, and, after completing his musical and other education at Denison University and Ohio State, he is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity and a symphonist. This latter an honorary musical and literary fraternity at Denison.

Of course he led the college orchestra, was prominent in the Glee Club and in the dramatic societies, and was the originator of "around the campus." His first professional venture produced one of the greatest dance orchestras in the country, the California Ramblers. This band played all over the country and was considered "hot." Al then joined the Victor Orchestra and a little later Waring's Pennsylvanians, although I am under the impression that he never appeared with them during the twenty-odd weeks they have played in Washington theaters. Tom Waring having been pianist-vocalist during the local engagements.

It impresses me as an unfortunate bit of oversight, however, that Al Evans should be proclaimed on the Palace stage, in a trailer for the local management, in no way connected with the orchestra, and that he should be the founder of Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Fred Waring and his boys have been here too often to need to be introduced to the theatergoers not to be aware that they founded the organization bearing his name, and that he is the pianist originally consisting of himself, Tom, Fred Buck, banjoist, and Pol McClinton, trap drummer.

Mr. Evans, who graduated from the University of Maryland last June, has been appointed to the faculty of Bruce High School to succeed Mrs. Elizabeth Somerville, recently married to Helen Smith, Longacres, graduate of Western Maryland College, succeeds Mrs. Agnes Harris on the faculty of Westernport, who graduated at the University of Maryland last June, has been appointed to the faculty of Bruce Junior High School, Miss Annette Yates, of Cumberland, graduate of Western Maryland College will succeed Miss Ruth Apple as music supervisor at Bruce High.

The Bruce High faculty members are: Miss Ruth Apple as music supervisor at Bruce High.

Principal: John Loughlin, Miss Anna Lauder, Miss Margaret Hayden, Miss Anna Wagner, John E. Grider, Bruce Junior High teachers: Miss Margaret Thomas, Miss Hazel Poland and Miss Anna Lauder.

Miss Mary Longridge, of Barton, was named a member of the Luke School faculty. For the past two winters she has taught in Florida.

Only one change was made in the Hammond Street School faculty, following the resignation of Miss Campbell, who is succeeded by Miss Virginia Barnard, daughter of former Mayor John Barnard, of Westernport. Miss Barnard has taught at McCoolle and Kitzmiller.

License Case and Plan

Further Recourse.

Special to The Washington Post

Danville, Va., Aug. 21.—Danville's three chiropractors, D. L. Ragland, E. F. Graham and T. J. Oakes, were today fined $25 each in police court for practicing without a city license. Appeals were noted and a test of the constitutionality of the amended State medical practice act was headed for the Supreme Court of Virginia in the event the conviction is sustained in the local corporation court.

A deputy commissioner of the revenue was the only witness testifying that none had paid the license fee. Defense counsel brought out that all had offered to pay the license but had been refused because they could not produce written evidence of having passed the examination of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Frank Talbot and Harry Wood, Jr., defense counsel, entered into a warm exchange when the latter in his final plea charged that the State law had been amended "for no other purpose than that of running the chiropractor out of business in this State."

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly and pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Author of 'Glass Houses' Revisits Camp

Mrs. Schlesinger, on Way to 'Flat Creek,' Will Miss Guide.

"FLAT CREEK," a ranch of about 160 acres in the heart of the wildest Wyoming country, is the destination of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson Glychka Schlesinger, who is now en route West to pass several weeks at this summer home which lies far from the beaten track of civilization. Mrs. Schlesinger has owned "Flat Creek" for many years, and its associations are linked up with the important events of her life.

This retreat in the Wyoming wilds formed the background against which Mrs. Schlesinger painted a striking story of Western life in "Glass Houses." Before her second marriage to Elmer Schlesinger, of New York, she passed entire summers amid the solitude and lovely loneliness of "Flat Creek." It was here that, riding horseback across the desolate but gorgeous wastes, Mrs. Schlesinger conceived the idea of a novel which should vividly portray the beauty of Wyoming, contrasting it with the tinsel gaiety of Washington life. In this book Mrs. Schlesinger gave the world a glimpse of her soul, and if the title of the volume had been "Flat Creek" rather than "Glass Houses," it would have been equally appropriate.

From the fastnesses of this little ranch, hidden so securely among stretches of rocks and sage brush, came several years ago a curious character who took Washington completely by surprise. His name was Cal Kerrington. He was mountain guide of the "Flat Creek" region, and an old friend of the Patterson family. While he was in the Capital, his life was a pioneer's life in solitary grandeur at the Patterson mansion on Dupont Circle. Not altogether solitary grandeur, however, for Mr. Kerrington mingled on occasion with the life of Washington. His fame as a raconteur waxed greatly during his visit.

Senators and diplomats were asked to meet this interesting, grizzled old veteran who had seen the West in its youth and knew more about its history than most people do about the every day face of life. It was a privilege to dine with him and listen to his stories. Mr. Kerrington made many distinguished friends here. Among other noteworthy individuals, he met President Coolidge and enjoyed a long conversation with that sometimes taciturn man. The Westerner appeared pleased by his reception in the East, although his heart was always with his native State. He was impressed, but not overawed, by the stateliness of the Capitol and the Washington Monument. He never wore white spats, however, and State Department teas would have bored him to extinction. Which was an excellent reason for never attending one.

This year Mrs. Schlesinger will miss Cal Kerrington on her Western trip, for the veteran guide is now in Alaska. But even without his aid, Mrs. Schlesinger knows all the trails and camping sites in the vicinity of "Flat Creek." She will have to arrive at her retreat on horseback, for there is not even a wagon road leading to it. Before going to her ranch, she plans to visit Senator and Mrs. Henrik Shipstead in their Minnesota home, and later she will go to the Canadian Rockies.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Ahmed Moustafa Bey, was among those lunching at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. Others were Mrs. M. A. Rice, Mrs. M. C. Karaman, Mrs. John B. Taylor, Mrs. Thomas Bone, Mrs. M. Frail, Mr. J. L. Smith and Mr. Morgan Beach.

Amos, Andy Broadcast Over WRC

Inability of WBAL to Include Feature Wins Popular Comedians for Local Station Except Tuesdays.

The popular black-face comedians, "Amos 'n' Andy," believed lost to local listeners when they joined the blue network of the National Broadcasting Co., have been restored to the audience through WRC, according to an announcement by Frank M. Russell, vice president. Their first program under the new arrangement was heard locally last night.

The two radio stars, known to listeners from coast to coast, will broadcast every night except Tuesdays from 10 to 10:15 o'clock. They have inaugurated a brand new network program based on a conception of a daily comic strip for the air.

Mr. Russell explained that the program was being broadcast locally for two reasons. The insistent demands of radio listeners and the inability of WBAL, Baltimore, which was recently ordered to divide time with WTRF, Hartford, Conn., to take the program.

However, it is not likely that all listeners will be satisfied with the new arrangement inasmuch as fifteen minutes on each week night and some rearrangement of the Sunday evening program will be necessary.

When two high-powered stations share time on the air, the radio engineers of the station involved are confronted with a unique broadcasting problem, namely, that of getting one station off the air at practically the same moment the other broadcaster is scheduled to come on, so that no interference or overlapping of programs ensues to cause annoyance to listeners. This problem is especially acute when the station involved is involved in evidence when network or commercial programs are immediately involved, as neither the appearance of the various features nor the time of their broadcast can be changed without the consent of the network or the advertiser.

At WBAL, Baltimore, the radio engineers of the station involved are confronted with a unique broadcasting problem, namely, that of getting one station off the air at practically the same moment the other broadcaster is scheduled to come on, so that no interference or overlapping of programs ensues to cause annoyance to listeners. This problem is especially acute when the station involved is involved in evidence when network or commercial programs are immediately involved, as neither the appearance of the various features nor the time of their broadcast can be changed without the consent of the network or the advertiser.

Ordinarily, a station operating on an unlimited time, puts its carrier-wave on the air a few minutes before the announcer enters in the "cue," but when two high-powered stations must get their programs off at the same time, as in the case with WRC and WBAL, there may result a severe heterodyne unless some means is employed to avoid overlapping. The equipment designed solely for this purpose and in use at WBAL, is under the control of the announcer who performs the operation by remote control from the announcer's booth in the broadcasting studios, located more than 20 miles from the transmitting station. The transmitter is tested out on the dummy antenna beforehand as usual, and after the test is over, the out-door antenna and then all is ready for the final switch which automatically closes the plate circuits of the power tubes. The final operation is performed by WBAL's remote control carrier-wave circuit and is accomplished in a single operation by the announcer's booth twenty miles away.

Both WRC and WBAL use clocks regulated according to Naval Observatory time and through the perfect timing of the program features, together with the aid of this carrier-wave control are listeners guarded against heterodyne, cross-talk and other interference that might otherwise result.

Krueger to Direct New Air Series

Will Conduct 16-Piece Orchestra, Male Quartet and Soprano Over WMAL Tonight—Favorite Operas on WRC.

The initial program of a series to be presented over Station WMAL and the Columbia Broadcasting System by the makers of Gold Seal radio tubes will be heard at 8:30 o'clock. A sixteen-piece orchestra directed by Benny Krueger, a male quartet and Edna Duane, soprano, will contribute to this program.

Miss Duane will sing "L'Amour Toujours" while Mr. Krueger will contribute two specialty numbers on his saxophone and the quartet is to be heard in a medley, "When My Dreams Come True." "If I Give Up the Saxophone" and "Seventh Heaven."

Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, will be heard as guest artist with the Buffalo Civic Symphony Orchestra during the program broadcast at 9 o'clock from WMAL. For this appearance he has selected four operatic numbers for which he has become especially well known, the Credo from Verdi's "Otello," the "Die Meistersinger," Schumann's "The Two Grenadiers" and "Hans in Luck."

Sixteen musical numbers to be offered by John Barclay, baritone; Ethel O'Neil, soprano; Helen Oelheim, contralto; Dan Gridley, tenor; the Rollickers, an orchestra of forty-three pieces will make up the Voice of Columbia program at 9:30 o'clock.

Capt. F. T. Hawley of the Los Angeles Detective Bureau, an officer noted for his effective work in solving a number of crime mysteries, contributes the feature "True Detective Mysteries" broadcast at 8 o'clock. In his story, "It Beats the Third Degree," Capt. Hawley illustrates the method of the Los Angeles Bureau in solving crime, and gives every detail of his work in breaking up a desperate Los Angeles gang which had committed several major crimes.

Victor Arden and Phil Ohman, popular artists of the hour, will be the stars of the Victor Half-hour of dance music at 7:30 o'clock through WRC. These two pianistic interpreters of modern dance-compelling tunes are said to have caused more rags to be rolled back than any other pair of artists on the air.

Light dips into favorite operas comprise the program of the National Broadcasting and Copeport Bureau which will be heard at 9:30 o'clock. Modern and fascinating music in which the flute is heard in imitation of the Pan-pipes, "L'Après-midi d'un Faune," a sketch of a pagan inhabitant of the woods. The waltz choros from Tchaikovsky's "Little Russian Opera," "Eugene Onegin," appears among the orchestral selections.

The Chatterbox, the Songsters, and Musical "Lionel" soprano, contribute to this hour. Hugo Mariani directs the concert orchestra in the following program.

Phil Spitalny and his orchestra will include the following numbers in the program between 10 o'clock and midnight: "S'posin," "Pagan Love Song," "Yo Te Amo," "I've Got a Feeling I'm Falling," "Lullaby," "Song of the Volga Boatmen," "I'd Do Anything for You," "Satisfied," "Crucial Moment," and "Tiger Rag."

Mary Alexander, concert pianist and former pupil of Alfred Cortot, will be heard at 10:30 o'clock in popular songs, also scheduled.

The United States Army Band will be heard from WJW for an hour beginning at 8:30 o'clock, followed by the Hawaiian Melody Show. Nordica Mandolin and Guitar Club will be featured for an hour at 9:30 o'clock.

Terry White, the novelty whistler, who has become a popular entertainer from WOL, will again be presented by that station at 8 o'clock.

INTERPRETS the MODE

Lovely white frock, "Jolette," with self-applications and pleating, and soft lingerie touches at throat and wrists. (Courtesy of Jean Patou, Paris.)

MISCELLANEOUS jottings from the Fashion Notebook: Sport shoes are now being made with matching belts to go on the accompanying dress.

Knitted pull-overs to be worn with the simpler types of tailleur, which have gold threads mingled with the silk or wool, are now being made up with intricate gleams of silk, plain or varicolored. They give a new note of elegance to these practical garments.

Tussor, a delightful, rough-hewn silk material, is very popular this season. We have seen some lovely tailleurs and simple, straight coats made of tussor, sometimes in bright colors but most often in the natural ecru shade of the material.

Just as tulle for hat-making have grown thin and supple, the new and popular straws show the same tendency. One sees a great many picture hats or capelines of straw lace or horse-hair lace, giving a charming effect.

Redingotes have adopted the Prince line quite definitely, and many of them are of heavy silk or dull satin.

Short satin jackets in delicate pastel shades are being much worn over after-evening gowns. More or less duffy collures, with intricate lace, are considerably in evidence.

The loveliest little negligee jacket to wear over your dainty nightgown? It takes but two and one-quarter yards of georgette or chiffon, pleating, no lining, and a few minutes of your better sense, your stamping, self-addressed envelope to the Dore Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you exactly how to cut and make it.

And there! A Lovely Lady frock illustrated for your approval, all white and trimmed with applications of the same material, and intricate pleating. And then Jean Patou adds soft lingerie touches at throat and wrists.

In the very interesting letter sent to us by the China Express Co., recently, in which they told us so many things about dragons (member the

CONVERTIBLE BONDS NEW YORK MARKET TRANSACTIONS OF YESTERDAY

Trading in General List Tapers Down as Profit Taking Sets In.

FEDERAL GROUP IS QUIET

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Convertible bonds in the listed market today duplicated the performance of stocks, opening strong and then turning sharply downward in the face of easy money rates. Bonds without a special appeal were practically ignored.

The volume of trading was heavy in the morning session, but profit taking became more pronounced as the day progressed. Sales totaled $1,400,000, with a net gain of $1,000,000. Selling was attributed to traders fearing an increase in the Bank of England discount rate tomorrow. Call money renewed at 7 and dropped to 6 per cent, with some loans at 5 per cent reported made in the outside market.

Instead of the usual note and mortgage financing for a building project, the National City Co. today offered publicly $2,500,000 30-year 6 per cent income debentures and 62,500 shares of capital stock of National Hotel of Cuba Corporation.

The proceeds will finance construction of a new hotel in Cuba and in line with the recent building policy announced by National City.

Commercial Investment Trust 5 1/2, which were being sold at a high price at 109, but fell back in the afternoon selling wave, closing at 107 for a net gain of a fraction.

United States Steel sinking fund 5 1/2, which are being retired, reached a new high at 108 1/2 on a fractional advance.

The communication convertibles—International Telephone 4 1/2 and American Telephone 4 1/2—turned downward after the opening, closing with net losses of 6 points each.

The rails were not ignored, and Atchafalpa convertible 4 1/2, after equaling their previous high at 104 1/2, wound up the day at 107 for a net loss of 1 1/2. Atchafalpa general 4 1/2, which was sold at 90 on a fractional decline, closed at 90 1/2.

Cuba Cane Sugar 5 1/2, which was sold at 107 for a net gain of 1/2, closed at 107 1/2.

United States Government securities were quiet, holding around their yesterday's closing figures. The foreign list was dull and featureless.

BOND SALES IN NEW YORK EXCHANGE

Share Division Displays Improved Tone—Linotype Again Leader.

BANKS' ISSUES ACTIVE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The marked increase in bond activity which featured Tuesday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange was a reflection of the usual heavy sales fall off of 2-3 per cent from the previous day's volume, $21,000, a second high for the month. Yesterday's total of $27,000 was confined to $1,000 and $3,000 sales of Washington Gas & Electric Co. at 102 1/2, latest quotation, and a $3,000 sale of the same stock at 101 1/2, at a half-point rise from above the 94.

The stock division exhibited a slightly improved tone, however, with turnover aggregating 356 shares which featured Tuesday's trading by 92. While there were no unusual heavy sales in small-priced issues, greater activity was shown in Mercantile Bank of India, selling in five blocks, aggregating 58 shares at fractional advances over 104 1/2. In Commercial National Co., preferred, a 30-share block of which changed hands at 103, point-and-a-half rise from the previous day's sale.

Two national bank stocks were active, ten shares of National Metropolitan moving at 410 and three of Riggs at 877. The usual heavy ten shares in the 6 per cent preferred traded at a point gain over 112 and one of the 5 1/2 per cent preferred at a fractional loss from 107 1/2. Sales of 14 shares of Federal American Co. common at 42, point advance; 20 of Terminal Refrigerating, 10 of Waterhouse Corp., at 51 1/2, last sale figure, and 10 of Washington Railway & Electric preferred at 98, fractional rise, were also recorded.

One hundred shares of National Mortgage & Investment preferred moved at 4 1/2, latest quotation, and 55 shares of Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty preferred at 7 1/2, most recent level.

Extension for Deposit Announced.

An extension in the date for deposit of 5 per cent advance on mortgage gold bonds, due 1949, of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., until September 6 next, has been announced by Charles S. McCain, chairman of the committee.

In a joint statement with Robert L. Nall, chairman of the committee, directors of the company, Mr. McCain announced that $10,024,000 or 70 per cent of the total of $25,000,000 of these bonds had been tendered up to August 16 last. More have been turned in since that date and while this percentage is regarded as a high figure, the committee is desirous of raising the figure as close to 100 per cent as possible.

CHAPTER VII

Saturday night. Bath night. Dance night. Most of all, dance night. Mary Della had never missed a Saturday night dance at Hamilton park. But until this present Saturday, she had never lacked for an escort. She began to understand the disadvantages of that serious state of companionship known in her set as keeping steady company.

Joe, apparently frightened off by his own neglect, had not appeared to claim his usual privilege of taking her to the park, and the string of hopefuls who had once competed for the pleasure had long since withdrawn to more receptive fields.

But more than ever before, Mary Della felt the need of the crowd and the music and the payette of the park dance and, there was, she reflected, more ways than one to skin a cat. "Mary Della," said Mrs. Chubb when the supper dishes had been cleared away and the vase of artificial American beauties set in the center of the table, "me and your Pop are going to the pictures."

Mr. Chubb, far from comfortable in a stiff collar and his best suit, was frowning at the evening papers, while Mrs. Chubb made her customary elaborate preparations for the weekly visit to the bright lights of East Main street.

"And—," Mrs. Chubb resumed, "you'd better go right to bed like you promised me this morning if you don't run into any of the men from the shop and stand on the street talking half the night."

When they had gone, Mary Della caught her dress, cross-arm fashion, and pulled it over her head. Then she went to the bathroom. Three minutes later she came out in a smart little frock of rose chiffon with a double-breasted skirt that showed the same aversion to knees that all Mary Della's frocks enjoyed.

She looked at the clock. It was 7:30. Four hours later, she had stayed in the city Saturday night. But there was no time to speculate upon it.

At the Center she waited impatiently for a trolley. A cozy coupe stopped by the curb to wait for a green light and Mary Della recognized Bill Derwin. She knew he was on his way to the park to take charge at the dance and she was half tempted to ask him if she might go along, but she merely smiled when Bill bowed. Nice boy, Bill, but he might think she was fresh.

At last the East Main street trolley arrived and there followed a mad rush for seats. It looked like a strap for Mary Della until she spotted Eddie Keenan holding down three side seats by the simple expedient of squeezing himself into them.

"Gosh, Eddie," Mary Della called, wiggling down the aisle, "can't you give a poor girl a chance to rest her feet?"

Eddie got up with surprising agility and made a courtly bow. "Help yourself and bring a friend," he said laughing. "Look sort of lonely tonight, Mary Della. Where's that bird you've been running around with, 'wiking'?"

"I don't know," Mary Della replied. "What's your opinion?"

"Excuse me," there's Doc O'Hara growling in the door. I want to find out about that two bucks he owes me." He shoved off in the packed car and Mary Della was left alone once more.

Leaving the trolley at the park, she wondered whether she should go in alone or wait outside until she saw some girl she knew and tag along with her. But she had barely asked the question when some one ran up out of the group leaving the car and caught her arm. It was Timmy Fitzmaur.

"Whoopie!" cried Timmy, who had once lost his heart to Mary Della and got it back again with no effort on his part. "This is like old times, Mary Della. All by your lonesome?"

"Not quite, Timmy. You're company of a sort. Are you taking me to this dance?"

"And how! But if I don't know how to act, you'll know it's because I haven't been away with a girl since you gave me the air."

"Hokum," said Mary Della. "I see Sharkey's throwing out the usual salutation of newspaper boys." Mary Della saw many familiar faces inside and there was no lack of dancing partners. Which was not surprising when you consider that she was about the prettiest, snappiest little article on the floor. Her one great problem was persuading Timmy that he ought to dance with some of the other girls.

"But what's the use?" Timmy asked at the end of a dance. "They're all getting along o. k. without me, and you're the only one I'm interested in. What say we sit the next one out?"

"Out where?" The next two were taken. How about the third?" Mary Della suffered no illusions about what it meant to "sit it out" with Timmy. His idea of a good dance was a single fox-trot and the next ten numbers in a parked automobile, usually the first parked automobile he came to, owner unimportant, unless occupied.

But she also knew that she could let Timmy around her little finger. Comfortably settled in the back seat of a big sedan that Timmy swore belonged to Harold Lynch, Mary Della began to hum, "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder."

"Nice song, that," said Timmy, putting his arm on the back of the seat. "Heard 'Sonny Boy' yet?"

"Heard it? I thought the Government had deported it as a public nuisance." She resumed her tune. "Sweet night," Timmy announced, letting his arm slide down until it rested on Mary Della's knee.

"Never saw a sweeter," Mary Della agreed. "By the way, Timmy, you aren't working yourself up to ask me for a kiss, are you?"

"Well—," said Timmy. "I'd sure love to kiss you, Mary Della. I'm silly about you, Mary Della, you know that."

"That's a lot of responsibility to put on me, Timmy. Sure you weren't that way before you ever heard of me?"

"But I'll tell you, Timmy. I won't crab about your arm sneaking around up there if you get any kick out of it, but you mustn't expect any more fun out of me. That's the limit."

Timmy retrieved his arm and sat sullenly staring at the couples moving in and out of the hall. The night was a total loss as far as he was concerned.

But suddenly he sat up. "So that's that the story," he said aloud. "Did you say something?" Mary Della inquired.

"I see your game now, Mary Della," he explained. "I thought it was funny you'd come out here by yourself, but I didn't know you met your boy friends in the park."

"Will you quit talking like a crystal-gazer and tell me what's eating on you?"

"Joe speaks just went in the hall. Don't tell me you didn't know he was coming out tonight."

"Will you ever grow up, Timmy? Do you think I'd be so stupid as to let you? Boy, you get more cuckoo every day. Come on, I'm going in."

"I know it," Timmy cried, unconvinced, and followed in Mary Della's wake.

Joe speaks was standing just inside the door when they went in. He waited until Mary Della and Timmy were dancing, and then cut in.

"We don't cut in out here," Timmy informed him grandly, clinging to Mary Della.

"Oh, don't we?" Joe asked, shoving Timmy roughly aside. "I'm so sorry."

"Don't make a scene, Timmy," Mary Della pleaded. "You've had your share anyhow."

They danced for a time in silence. "Well—," said Joe. "Well—," said Mary Della.

Another silence. "What's got into you, Mary Della?"

"Me? I hadn't noticed. Anything?"

"You still sore because I couldn't meet you last night?"

"Couldn't?" Mary Della repeated. "Break your leg or have to stay in after school?"

"You know I'd been there if it hadn't been something heavy. What's the idea of being so high-handed about it? Looks to me like some sheik's been cutting in on my territory."

Mary Della knew her face had grown suddenly red and she was afraid he would feel the pounding of her frightened heart. But she bit her lip and kept her face turned away from him.

"I'm going to tell you something, Mary Della. If I catch any boys running around you, I'm—he's going to wish he hadn't. Get me?"

"For a man that's got a lot to explain," Mary Della declared, "you're talking mighty big."

"Maybe," said Joe, "but you heard I couldn't get there last night and about that here if you get any come on, Mary Della, don't act like that. You know I'm sorry I had to stand you up. Let's forget it."

"And that's the explanation?" asked Mary Della.

"Oh, well, if you've got to know, I got in a crap game and lost pretty nearly every cent I had. I was just beginning to get it back at 8 o'clock, and I knew you'd listen to reason when I told you what happened."

"To bad we don't agree on what reason is. Let's get out of here. I need air—"

They rode out of Hamilton Park in Joe's car, stubbornly silent.

"What say, want to take a little ride?" Joe asked as they neared East Main street.

"You'll have to make it snappy. I'm due home before 11:30."

"That's easy," said Joe, and turned east. "We'll just about have time for a little chat by the side of the road."

"Where?" asked Mary Della.

"Oh, anywhere you say, sweetheart. There's a nifty place about half way to Cheshire, a piece of the old highway that—"

Mary Della felt the perspiration rising on her forehead and her legs grow weak.

FIRM SEEKS PLANT AT HARRIS FERRY

Chicago Firm Is Linked With the Projected Sale of Properties.

THREE PARCELS NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.
 Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 21.—The Potomac Electric Power Company and Shenandoah Pulp and Paper Company have agreed to sell the Harpers Ferry Electric Light company. The companies at Harpers Ferry would not deny that negotiations are on for the sale of the properties at Harpers Ferry and vicinity. Chicago interests are said to be the purchasers. In 1920 the Potomac Electric Corporation, which owns the company, sold the Harpers Ferry plant for about $100,000. The survey was made of the section, then known as the Potomac River south branch of the Potomac Green River, and all West Virginia, and the north fork of the Shenandoah River, near Broadway, Va., is Rockwell, in Hampshire County. The company, before the survey was started, held a first option on the Harpers Ferry properties, and in the summer of 1920

but before the matter could be disclosed, the parties disagreed on the price, which resulted in a suit which is still pending in the United States courts.

A public hearing by Federal Power Commission, on an application of the Potomac Co., was held at Harper's Ferry two years ago and also in Washington and recently the Government, through one of the Army officials, gave a favorable report on

The application was made by the Little Falls and Green Springs Chain Bridge and Ferry, Brocks Gap, South Branch of the Potomac, and Brocks Gap hydro development. Before a permit for further extensive surveying could be made, the project had to be approved by Congress as the hands of the Federal Power Commission have been tied by a restraining order.

The project is estimated to cost $1,000,000. Maj. Tyler, in his report to Congress over ten years ago, recommended a power plant at Great Falls, but the Potomac River Ferry, which is also at Harpers Ferry with storage dams on South Branch of the Potomac near Green Springs, Edgemoor, Little Falls near Charles Town
